Entering the world of Cisco

A year ago Cisco Systems completed the acquisition of Sourcefire. We have been a Sourcefire Gold partner since 2009, one year after they established their Nordic organization. If you are not familiar with Sourcefire, the company was founded in January 2001 by Martin Roesch, author of open source Snort. Snort is the world's most widely deployed intrusion detection and prevention technology

Configuration Management

When we developed a new cloud-based service, it was quickly clear that this only could be provided as a state of the art platform as a service. The choice fell on OpenShift Origin, the Open Source app hosting platform developed by RedHat.

We would also like to present you how we are using OpenStack in combination with Jenkins in an Continuous Integration environment for our virtualisation infrastructure.

Join us when some of our leading experts in agile IT operations and development are going to tell you the inside story.
